To whom it may concern,

Changing credit card processors is never a task anyone wants to endure. I have been in the industry 20+ years, and have had to change processors several times. It always is a grueling adventure. The cut over doesn't go properly, funds are being transmitted to the bank, etc.

I can honestly say, my experience with Post Integrations has been a pleasure. I have implemented Post at several properties, and gone through several system implementations. The experience is always seamless. Their team always insures that all details are noticed.
